Erasmus Hall High School

FOREWORD

ERASMUS HALL is a school living in the present and reaching into a future tempered by the glories of the past. It is a happy combination of the old Dutch Academy and the modern public high school. Since this is so, it is only fitting that this year book be a blend both of old and of new. For four years the seniors have been under the influences of a school rich in learning and tradition. In that time they have gained much knowledge which will prove valuable to them in whatever course they follow through life. Even after this knowledge is lost, however, they will still treasure memories of gray ivy-clad stones, the idiosyncrasies of the old building, and the loyalty and friendship found in the shelter of these historic walls.

Dedication

We dedicate this book,
Too inadequate a tribute,
To our wise and faithful counselor,
Florence E. Denholm.

THE CLASS OF JANUARY 1936

An Address

WE HAVE been travelling together on life's highway for four years. A conducted tour—shall we say?—in the realm of education. Now we approach a turning point where you take leave of the conductor and continue the journey independently. May He who designs the pattern of our lives, grant you continued health, increasing success and happiness.

It has been a privilege to share these years with you,—years when you have been building a character which may win the respect of all. You have learned to adapt yourselves to such life situations as you have found in the class room and in the conduct of student affairs. Here you have developed qualities of leadership, cooperation, and understanding,—habits of regularity, industry, and self-control. I hope we have fostered in you, too, a wholesome respect for law and order, and a reverence for the higher things in life.

Go forth now as loyal citizens of Erasmus Hall. Remember that our school will be judged by you. Be worthy of its traditions and true to its ideals. Face to-day's economic problems with courage and faith,—a will to conquer, a grim determination to succeed. "Do not dare to live without some clear intention toward which your living shall be bent. Mean with all your might to be something." Be honest with yourself as well as with your fellows. Play fair, not because you might be caught if you cheated, but because cheating is a loathsome thing. Honesty is not a policy but a right way of living.

It is difficult to address you thus, as a group. I much prefer to talk with you informally and individually. Your problems have been my problems through these years. My interest in your progress cannot cease at commencement. I shall expect to hear from you and about you as the years roll on.

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

Florence E. Denholm

A Message

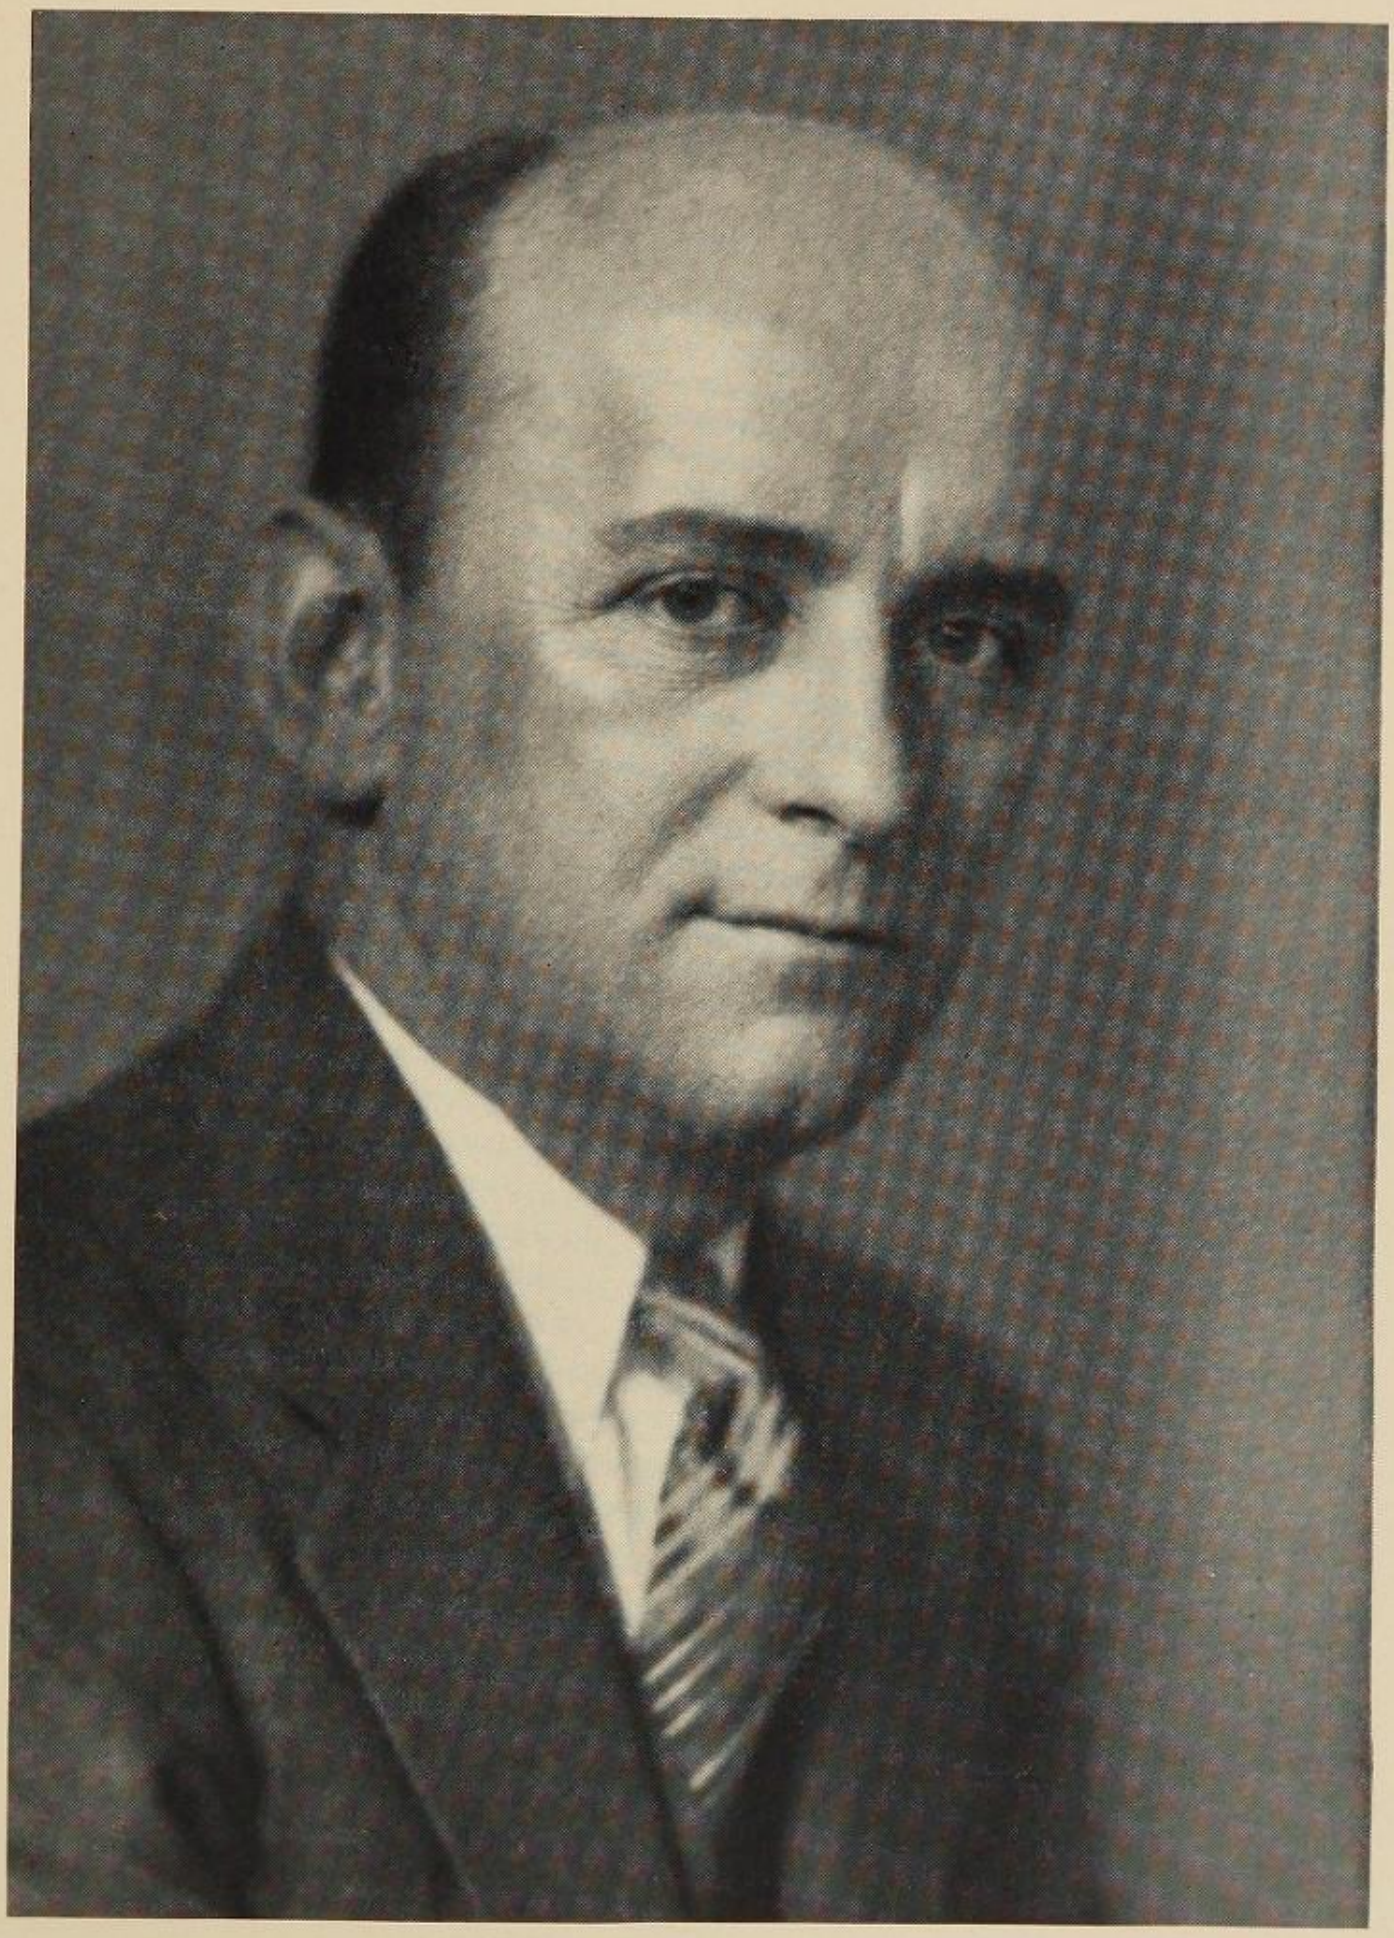
To the Members of the Class of January 1936:

To you, the youngest of her graduates, Erasmus Hall extends her greetings and best wishes. She is proud to welcome you to the ranks of her alumni for she has high hopes that your work in the world will be a full vindication of her confidence in you.

The young graduate to-day goes out into an uncertain world, a world struggling to effect social, political, economic, and spiritual adjustments so sorely needed if civilization is to advance. As you have played so large a part in the life of this school for the last four years, so may you manfully meet your responsibilities as intelligent, high-minded young citizens of this great country of ours. The Old Gray School will watch your careers with interest and pride, for in you, in what you become and do she sees her success or her failure.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN F. MCNEILL



Winter Twilight

The trees are quiet now.
All day the shining rapier of wind
Has tortured them.
All day the bitter rain has lashed
Gaunt boughs that lift
Beseeching mercy from the sky.
The sky above them glows
A deepening sapphire.
The wind and rain have fled before the dusk
The trees are still
To-night the trees will cower 'neath the stars
And moan, remembering.

A Pioneer In Education

At the seventy-first convocation of the University of the State of New York in Albany, Dr. Campbell, Superintendent of Schools, reviewed the progress made in Erasmus Hall as an example of the model high school.

By Dr. Harold G. Campbell

THE first secondary school to be chartered by the Regents of the University of the State of New York was Erasmus Hall Academy, founded in 1787, in the old Dutch village of Flatbush, Brooklyn, by a group of public spirited citizens, among whom were Alexander Hamilton, John Jay, Senator John Vanderbilt and the Rev. Dr. John H. Livingston, who became its first principal.

Erasmus had long since celebrated its 100th birthday as a private academy, when in 1896 it became part of the public school system under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education of what was then the City of Brooklyn.

The modern secondary school, wherein the aim is to develop the whole personality of the individual child, owes much to this institution that dates back to the latter part of the eighteenth century, to the year of the framing of the American Constitution.

When in 1896 Erasmus ended its days as a private academy and became part of the public school system, the late Dr. Walter B. Gunnison accepted the principalship with these words:

"Erasmus Hall shall stand, as far as in me lies, for sound scholarship, for general culture and refinement, and for that character that shall be self-reliant and manful. The traditions of the past shall be cherished and shall ever be an inspiration for the future."

If there be one criticism of modern education and of modern tendencies in general, it is that too little attention is paid to self-reliance and manfulness and that the traditions of the past are too little cherished. Education as well as government may become over paternalistic and destroy self-reliance by making school life soft and easy. Educators, as well as others, may go too far in scoffing at tradition.

The example of Erasmus Hall, which has made its past a part of its present, and where Greek is still taught as well as industrial art, has made it possible for the secondary schools of 1935 to avoid the mistakes of those who would ignore tradition and make education an effortless pastime.

Erasmus, in many respects, was the forerunner of what we now know as the "progressive schools," and yet Erasmus is as old as the Republic itself and clings to tradition as the ivy clings to its walls.

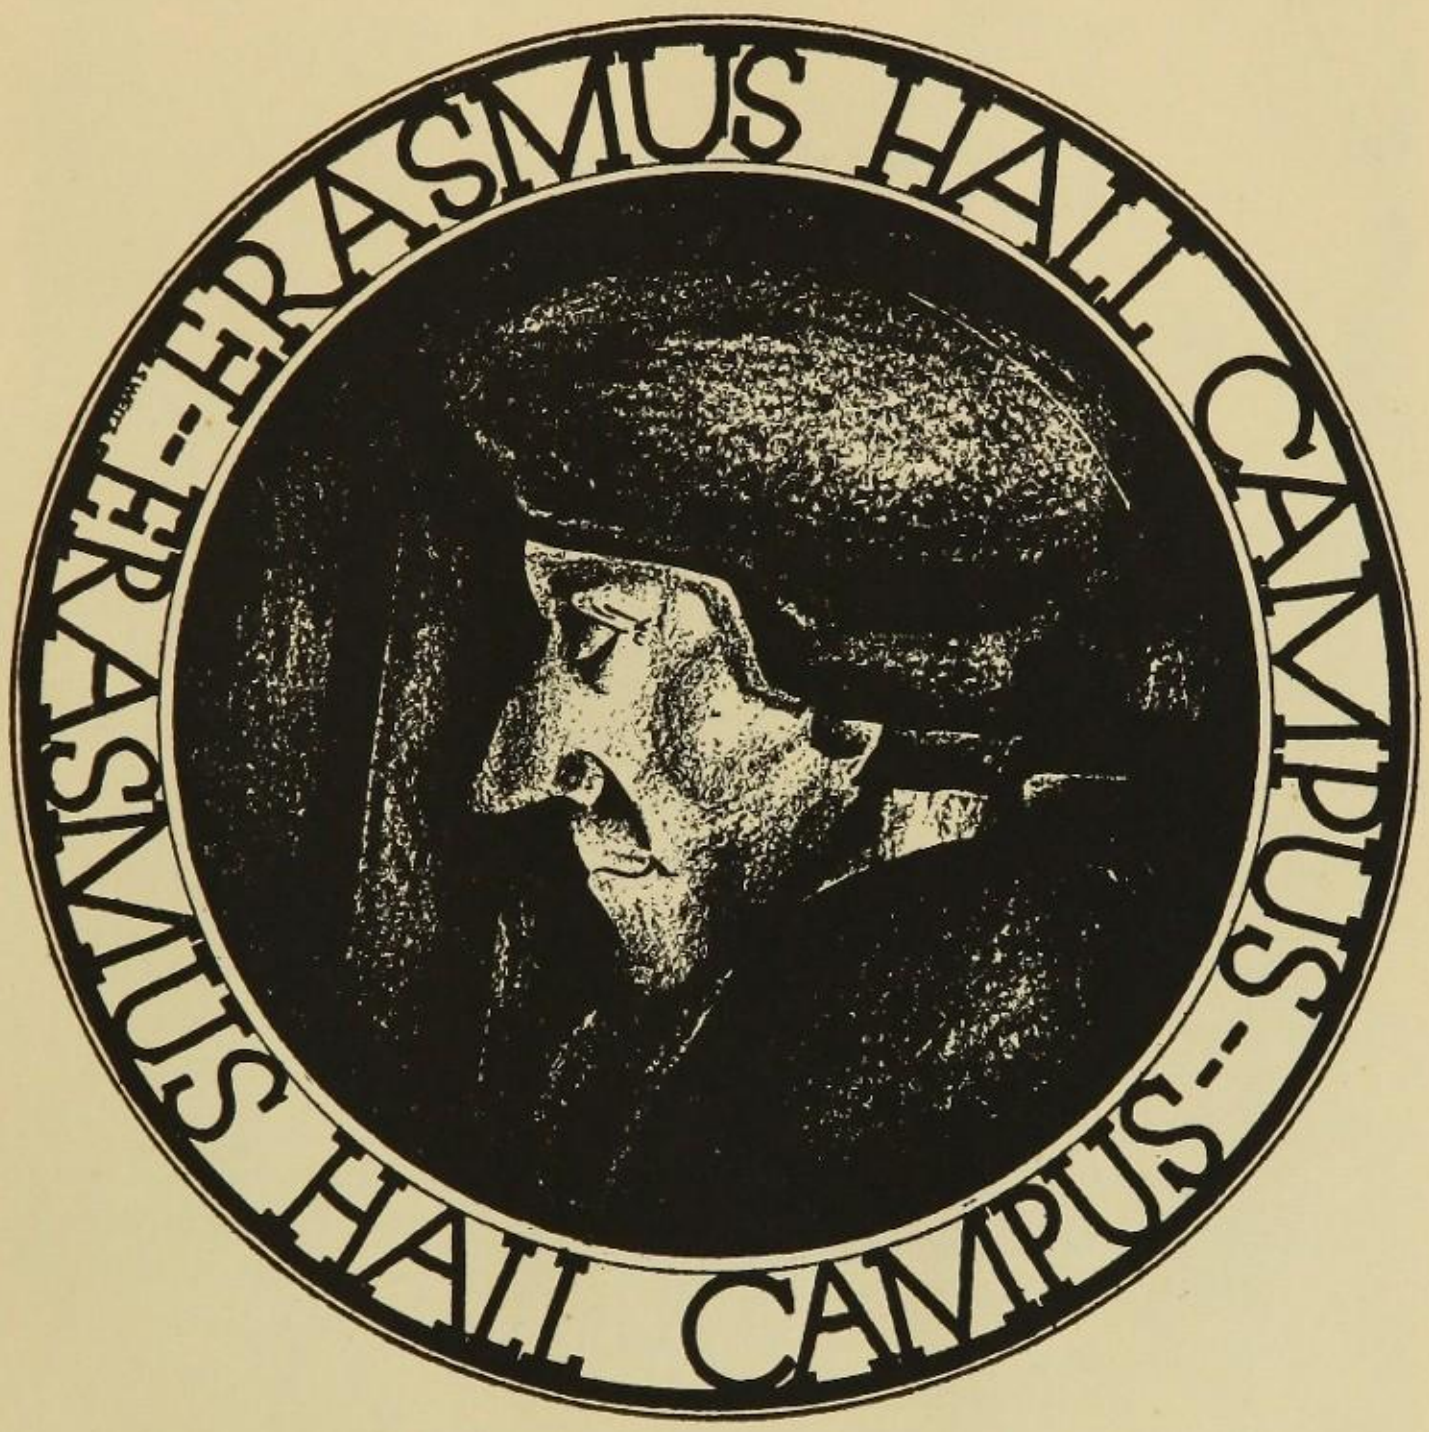
Dr. Gunnison was among the first of his contemporaries to preach the development of the child's entire personality and the treatment of every boy and girl as an individual.

Eugene Harter, writing thirty years ago, said that at Erasmus "the aim is to give free play and an opportunity for any possible taste and talent a boy or girl may have. Dr. Gunnison stands pre-eminently for his insistence upon the recognition of the individual and the development of personality in pupil and teacher."

Erasmus Hall gave us the Arista League, constituting one of the first attempts to make special provision for bright students. The Arista was established at Erasmus by Dr. Gunnison in 1910. Since that time practically every school has organized an Arista.

Erasmus Hall gave us the Grade Adviser system, an early step in the direction of individuation taken within a few years after the school had been organized. Under the Grade Adviser system a special teacher is placed in charge of each entering class and remains in charge of that class, acting as guide and counsellor to the pupils, until they have been graduated. From the beginning the Grade Adviser has been one to whom students may turn for advice as to what career they seem best fitted for, what college they ought to attend, or in what employment they would be most likely to succeed. The system having proved its value at Erasmus, it was soon instituted at other high schools.

Erasmus since it became a public high school has had but three principals—Dr. Gunnison, Dr. J. Herbert Low, and Dr. John F. McNeill. The problem of Dr. Low was and of Dr. McNeill is to perpetuate the ideals and preserve the traditions of an old, old school in a new and vastly different world. How well Dr. Low succeeded until the time of his retirement last year and how well Dr. McNeill is succeeding today is a tribute to the genius of both.



ERASMUS HALL CAMPUS

Campus Memories

Etched against a purple sky,
The twin towers stand
Shielding treasured memories
Of leaves softly falling
To the rich brown earth,
Creating a carpet of mellow gold,
Of youth surging,
A giant tide never ceasing
To hurl its strength against
The enemies of learning,
Of a mighty choir singing within
While the sunbeams flickering
Light the humanist's face
With a heavenly grace.

SAYONARA

HELEN ROOCHNIK, the outstanding student of our grade, passed away on August 13, 1935. To say that she was the typical Erasmian would not be sufficient. Helen was one of the geniuses who come within the portals of our school. Her marks never averaged below ninety-three. Her Regents' marks would have made her eligible for a State Scholarship. Her athletic standard was practically perfect. Helen was understanding and generous, never complaining, but giving herself wholeheartedly in service to her friends and to her school.

To Helen, in the vast expanse beyond, we send our regrets that she could not have been graduated with us, to receive here all the honors due her. We, however, as she, never question the righteousness of the Great Ruler and we say—Sayonara—Since it must be so.

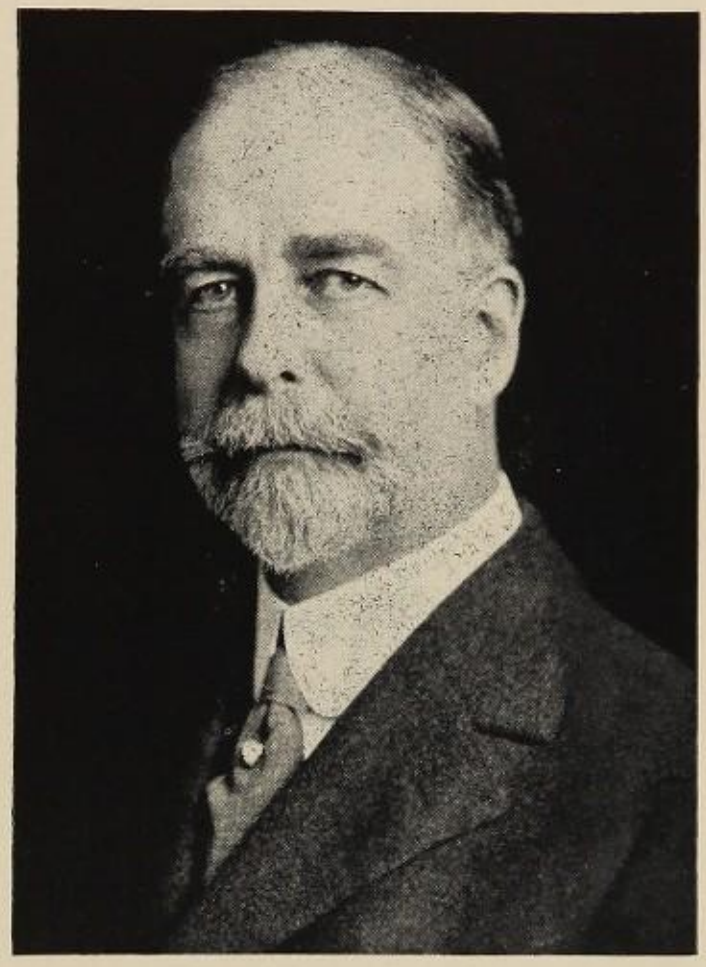
A Message



It is pleasant of you, my old friends, to ask me to say a good-bye word to you, and I'll do it.

One hears often that the younger generation laughs at advice from its elders, that it wants to learn of its own experience. Yet I imagine no one of you would care to eat the food of a beginning cook who refused to look at a recipe. We all must accept advice that sounds sensible and reject the rest. Your decision rests with yourselves.

I wish to say simply that you cannot improve the government and the welfare of your country, unless you accept the responsibility of citizenship equally with its privileges. The Greeks under Solon had a good law, that the man who had the right to vote and did not vote lost his citizenship.

Get the right meaning of patriotism: to live your life to the best of your ability, every day, every month, every year. Were that practice general, all graft would be eliminated, for one thing. You cannot be weak and dishonest and expect your leaders to be upright.

The strength of a nation rests upon the honor and character of its individual citizens.

Hail and Farewell!

J. Herbert Low

The committee responsible for the production of this book consisted of those members of the grade who gave willingly of their time, knowledge, and ability in preparing and coordinating material. They have striven to give to the class the best year book ever produced by students of Erasmus Hall.

We wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to the following:

Miss Olive Ewing Place and Miss Hazel Fisk, for their helpful criticism of the literary material.

The Erasmian Staff for their time and trouble in locating certain cuts and for lending us these cuts.

The Schneider Studios and The Chesterfield Publishing Company for their cooperation.

The official class teachers of Grade 8 for their continued interest.

Mr. Latham who has taken charge of Year Book Funds.

Class History

THE illustrious Class of January '36 began its unparalleled existence as green as any other Freshmen; but, let us tell you, we are proud of that fact because green things grow prodigiously.

When Rosy-Fingered Aurora appeared in the horizon, many of us were seen boarding the Church Avenue trolley and rattling out to the sparsely settled regions of East Flatbush. There we drank in learning and school spirit in gulps. Though the annex was a monstrous chunk of unrelieved yellow brick, it had certain aesthetics about it which the memory retains with some fondness. Will anyone ever forget the sweet coo of the asylum siren neatly punctuating a recitation?

When June came, bringing short pants and ice cream vendors, we grew very tense about Regents, only to find that first termers take none.

In September we marched enthusiastically and with a sense of fulfillment under the Arch. As second termers we were grouped into travelling classes. We travelled.

One year's experience with us proved to the faculty the almost superhuman ability of the rhetorical power which was inherent in us. Our Sophomore year was replete with hours spent attempting to persuade Miss Hodgdon that we had been in school on time, but had fallen into the pool before we could get to class.

It was in this year that three hundred Junior High School students joined our class, swelling our already generous ranks.

Our presence ushered in a wave of reform. Many improvements were made in the school. Noteworthy among them were the new type Erasmian, the change in the method of electing General Organization officers by eliminating stump speeches and other forms of ballyhoo, and the formation of the Freshman Advisory Committee.

All was not work, however, for this noble class. The locker room was our happy hunting ground. Three times daily we played football or enacted the French Revolution in the locker aisles. Queensberry would have wept to see our conflicts in which the only law was self-preservation.

We came to the end of this year with the sad knowledge that we were to be divorced forever from our beloved music periods spent in lusty zoo-zashing and zoom-zooming.

It was in our Junior year that our old friend, Dr. Low, left us. His retirement was a real blow to all. However, his burdens of office were taken over by Dr. McNeill, who had made his influence felt during the absence of Dr. Low on his sabbatical leave. Therefore, our relations with "headquarters" remained cordial.

A new element, in the form of a flagpole, was introduced to the campus. Many adopted this as a meeting place while others remained faithful to "Dessy" and the Arch.

Club life and activities began to interest us. The class officers were now able to take an active part in the Class Officers Association. Almost everyone belonged to the General Organization, subscribed to The Erasmian, and took home a copy of The Dutchman every week. There was a steady influx of contributions to these periodicals, and several were accepted. In fact, we were represented on the Erasmian staff by at least six members of our grade.

Having mastered the intricacies of music and hygiene, we turned our thoughts to the more serious task of learning to speak correctly. So great was our intellectual capacity, that the majority of us were able to master the ditties of Theophilus Thistle and Betty, who bought a bit o' butter.

After the gruelling strain of three years of rapid development, we attained the dignity of Seniors. We lent our benignant presences to practically every club. There was no important board or committee that we didn't grace.

Although no members of our grade took office in the General Organization, we were given our rightful membership on the Dutchman staff.

Ninety of our grade reluctantly left us in order to graduate in June. Even though deprived thus of some very fine students, we still had an infinite store of prestige and honor. Such names as Leonard Strangmeyer, Betty McConville, Martin Kalkstein, Dorothy Speake, Florence Engle, George Reader, Edith Schillinger, Walter Bernstein, Stanley Hyman, and a score of others are among the stars that brighten the firmament of '36.

Joseph F. Sulley

Dear Miss Denholm:

I have clipped Joseph Sulley's popular column, "P in R," from a newspaper of October 20, 1950. I am sure that you will be interested in anything concerning the Class of January 1936.

"PEOPLE IN REVIEW"

By JOSEPH SULLY

"Hello, all you charming New Yorkers. Here's your tried and worn journalist back again, thrilled and excited after one of the most successful premieres it has been my pleasure to write about. I say successful because not only was the play an excellent one, but so was the cast of 'First Nighters' that assembled, a cast to make the most blasé heart jump a few beats. 'Widows Might' is the name of the play. Don't miss it, for it is one of the finest things that these world-weary eyes of mine have seen for many a day. It was written by Walter Bernstein, directed by W. B. and Stanley Hyman, scenery and costuming done by Helen Shapiro, and it is starring Robert Kahn and the lovely Jean Wehmann—a cleverly written and not too subtle farce. It is the sort of thing one would like to write and very rarely does. Congratulations, W. B.! I knew you when!

"And the audience—what an audience! The wizard of high finance and the possessor of a sardonic smile, Mr. Leonard Strangmeyer, was very much in evidence in the first row. Dr. George Reader, a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, was with him. Benjamin Weinstock was there, too. I didn't see much of him since he was with four very beautiful young ladies; yet he still tried to catch the uncatchable of Edith Schillinger. He should know better, for Edith's escort (I promised not to print his name) had her undivided attention. Successful Sylvia Smith and her swains nodded and smiled at me. A nice gal is Sylvia. Orchids for Charlotte Finkelstein(and she was wearing them). She doesn't think I know about it, but her social service work which she does on the side, is one of the nicest things I know about her. (Aside to the Ladies—Fashion Note:—June Lauer wore a new shade of green that's a knockout). I was surprised to see the candidate for Governor in the second row, but I suppose even Mr. David Feldstein needs recreation. Dorothy Speake and her publisher were looking very pleased about something. Dorothy's latest book of verse will be out next month. We're all proud of Dorothy! Helen Lieberman started a vogue last night by wearing a lorgnette suspended from her wrist. Dangerous, I call it, but then again, so is Helen. Betty McConville was there, just back from her European trip. The Olympic champ, Rita Raymond, was talking to Janice Thralls very earnestly during the intermission. Janice, as you know, runs a hockey team, plays herself, edits a woman's magazine, and never looks bored. It's good knowing Janice; she makes you feel energetic. Dick Sachar predicts great things for his team this year. Robert Benjamin says, 'Hello.' He's back safe and sound from his third round-the-world trip, fascinating Lillian Stutter. Florence Spector, representing musical comedy, is wearing her hair in a new way. Looking very personable were the personable Lorraine McSherry and Dorothy Harper. Stephen Heidrich is leaving for Paris next week, to found a new school of painting. Senator Seymour Weiner was arguing with the insistent Sidney Trencher. The modest Mr. Weiner refused to have his picture taken. With him was Dr. Martin Kalkstein, who has just become head of the American Medical Association."

It's good fun reading about the people you know and like, isn't it? You ask me what I am doing with myself. Well, I am still thinking of the "Great American Novel", but I find taking care of a family is much more fun.

Sincerely yours,

FLORENCE ENGEL

SPORTSYNOPSIS

By MARTIN KALKSTEIN

WHEN diplomas are awarded to The Class of January, 1936, Erasmus Hall will lose some valuable competitors in every sport.

"INDIANS"

The hardest hit coach will be Mr. Murray, who has turned out some of the finest lacrosse teams in New York City. P.S.A.L. champions for the 1934 season, the Buff and Blue did not successfully defend their title in '35; nevertheless, they exhibited some fine stick work, losing their title to a great Manual ten. No less than eight lettermen have played their last game in Erasmus uniforms. Most prominent among the missing when the '36 season rings up the curtain, will be SPENCER REITZ, JOHN WIER, HOWARD WHITING, STANLEY GRIEF, and ARISTIDE CARBONE. These five were standouts through the season and will be difficult to replace. The others who played lesser rôles in the scheme of things are: JOE WILLIAMSON, HAROLD FRIEDMAN, and HOWARD PLOTKIN.

"PIGSKIN"

The next in line, whose ranks will be "shot" when our boys march across the platform at the Academy to receive that all-important scroll, will be our football mentor, Coach Paul Sullivan. Although having suffered one of the poorest seasons he has ever experienced, principally because of a scourge of injuries that hit the Buff and Blue gridders from the very start, Mr. Sullivan knows that he will be deprived of some stellar material in the persons of six alternating first stringers.

Regular ends for their first and last seasons, AL BECKERMAN and Captain DICK SACHAR, who was switched from a "tackle" position, were able to play only ocasionally because of injuries. JOE LIONETTI, who starred on the Erasmus attack in its successful inaugural against Brooklyn Prep, was a casualty in the opener, but he returned to the line-up later on in the schedule.

SIMPSON BERNSTEIN and DON HALSTEAD played steady hard-driving ball in every contest, and JOE WILLIAMSON got his big chance when the Erasmus backfield was crippled.

"DIAMOND"

The Buff and Blue nine, which did not get far in the '35 championships, loses three of the finest wearers of the colors, FREDDY PRICE, all-scholastic mention in 1934, ROBERT MAYER, and HUMPHREY PLANT.

"HOOPS"

Here Coach Al Badain finds that the rest of the greatest basketball squad ever produced in his stay at Erasmus Hall is leaving him. Ex-captain ARNIE COHEN, RAY DIB, TEDDY OKARMA, and ABE KAHANER are those who will say "Au Revoir."

"SPLASH"

From the swimming team that missed, by an arm's length, being acclaimed as the city champs, Coach Bill Mullins has, for the last time, used the services of five natators: JACK ESCALES, RAY LINEHAN, NORMAN GOLDBERG, JOE LALLY, and ARNIE COHEN.

"BOOT"

Soccer, the de-emphasized sport of Erasmus Hall, loses PAUL RADLER, HUMPHREY PLANT, GEORGE PETTIT, AARON BLUM, FRED PRICE, and STAN STEINER.

"CINDERS"

Good-bye to AL LATTEMAN.

"THE LAST MILE"

Farewell to ED BROWN, ARTHUR RITZ, and P. ROBERTS of the Cross-Country team.

"AGAINST THE WALL"

The last of the sports' contingent who will receive his sheepskin is SID SHERMAN, of the handball team.

Girls' Athletics

ALTHOUGH the front pages of The Dutchman never overflowed with so much news of girls' sports as of boys', the spirit the girls of The Class of January 1936 displayed in athletics was an admirable one.

Not without reason were we proud of our Babe Ruths. Some of those who might have claimed that title are: ELAINE FRIED, CHARLOTTE FINKELSTEIN, BEATRICE MC CONVILLE, RITA RAYMOND, MARGARET RIGBY, and JANICE THRALLS. Since the team seemed weak for the first two years, coaches and higher teams were greatly surprised when in the fifth term our team defeated all other baseball teams and won "E's." With the loss of our three and one-half year graduates, the team was considerably weakened and lost, in the seventh term, the last chance for an award in baseball.

The glory of the basketball team was upheld by RITA RAYMOND, JANICE THRALLS, FLORENCE LEON, HELEN DIDWALIS, and CHARLOTTE FINKELSTEIN. In spite of the loss of the three and one-half year graduates the team emerged victorious in the tournaments in their seventh term and were awarded "E's."

Hockey was the most beloved sport of the girl athletes. The outstanding hockey players were: RITA RAYMOND, JANICE THRALLS, RUTH MC-CULLOUGH, MARGARET RIGBY, ELAINE FRIED, and DOROTHY HARPER. Twice a week they struggled in Prospect Park to become masters of their sticks and pucks. Their struggles were rewarded, for when only in the fourth term they came in second in the tournaments and received "E. H.'s." There was little surprise when they took first place the next year and won their "E's."

This resumé would be incomplete should we fail to mention Leaders' Club. Its members under their never-tiring adviser, MISS ANN MC GLUE, were girls outstanding in athletics. Trained in leadership, loyalty, and sportsmanship, they coached athletics and gymnasium activities. The Class of January 1936 boasts of six graduates who were members of Leaders' Club. They are: BEATRICE MC CONVILLE and JANICE THRALLS, president and vice-president respectively; CHARLOTTE FINKELSTEIN, ELAINE FRIED, MARGARET MAGNA, RITA RAYMOND and MARGARET RIGBY.

The fine spirit of the girls of January '36 will serve as a worthy model for the future girl athletes of Erasmus Hall.

Senior Arista

SENIOR ARISTA is a society having for its faculty adviser Miss Bertha L. Muller. The main purpose of Senior Arista is to make manifest the school's appreciation of the individual student's scholastic standing, service, and character. We seldom realize the really impressive spirit that animates these students. For there is a great deal of difficulty in the efficient running of a high school, and these members of Senior Arista have fully shown that they have realized the importance of, and have cooperated in their small but efficient way, in the smooth-functioning of the school.

Farewell

FOUR hard years these were supposed to have been. For some, perhaps this is true, but for others there was a great deal of fun, the fun of progress and advancement in knowledge and of new friendships and interests. The four hard years are gone. The present cruise of the ship of learning is over. Port has been reached and the gangplank let down for all to go ashore. There's a last farewell to shipmates on the four year trip. Our paths will cross some day again. Meantime we must look at our charts to plot our course into the future. Bon Voyage!
